Blunt Pledges $2 Million for Life Science Incubator at MU

As part of his bold Lewis and Clark Discovery Initiative, Gov. Matt Blunt was at the Christopher S. Bond Life Sciences Center on the University of Missouri-Columbia campus on Thursday to pledge $2 million to the university for a new Missouri Life Science Incubator. The facility will be a key development in helping researchers move their science from the laboratory to commercial businesses.

Through the Lewis and Clark Discovery Initiative, Blunt has also proposed that the state provide assistance to help our institutions bring technologies into the global market through the Missouri Discovery Alliance. The Alliance will be designed to maximize the economic impact of science and technology in Missouri by attracting and retaining life science companies and to help develop commercial applications for research. Photo by MU Publications and Alumni Communications Office. Read more...

Advisory Council Designs Roadmap for Plant Biotechnology

Gov. Matt Blunt met with members of the Missouri Governor's Advisory Council for Plant Biotechnology late last week to outline short, mid and long term goals designed to accelerate growth in Missouri's plant biotechnology industry. The council discussed life science initiatives underway across the state; outlined goals for enhancing plant science research and commercialization; reviewed legislative proposals and ideas, such as the governor's newly proposed Lewis and Clark Discovery Initiative; and explored potential funding sources for new commercial ventures. ## Bond, Talent Congratulate Boeing Workers on F-15 Sale to Singapore

This U.S. Senators Kit Bond and Jim Talent joined hundreds of workers at Boeing last week to congratulate them on the recent sale of 12 St. Louis-built F-15s to Singapore. This sale, estimated at $1 billion, ensures the F-15 line will be operational through 2010, protecting the 1800 jobs that depend on the plane. Earlier this year, the Missouri senators helped secure $65 million for F-15 procurement in the FY06 Defense Appropriations bill.

These funds supplement the $110 million Bond secured in last year's defense appropriations bill, bringing the total amount available for F-15 production to $175 million. Read more....

Missouri, Kansas Officials to Create Bi-State Life Sciences Corridor

Gov. Matt Blunt, Kansas Gov. Kathleen Sebelius and other state, corporate and economic development officials met for a regional growth summit at the Sprint Nextel campus in Overland Park last week to encourage bi-state cooperation in the future growth of the greater Kansas City area.

The two governors pledged to work together toward several initiatives, particularly in the quest to further develop the region as a life sciences hub by creating a life sciences corridor between Columbia and Manhattan running through Kansas City. Other bi-state cooperation initiatives signed were aimed at refraining from using state economic development incentives to attract companies across borders, marketing the area as a whole, creating a higher education enterprise, supporting opportunities to make the region a center for animal health, improving regional public transit, and supporting work force preparation and training. ### Legislative Update

In December, Gov. Matt Blunt and top Chrysler Group officials announced the automaker's plans to invest up to $1 billion in the St. Louis North and South Assembly Plants in Fenton. At the time, state and local officials were working on an incentive package that helped trigger the company's decision. Part of the state's incentive package hinges on legislation that is currently on the fast track in the Missouri General Assembly. The bills contain changes that would enable the Fenton plants to qualify for the state's BUILD Program because of the jobs that will be retained due to the expansion. SB 645 has already passed out of the Senate and has been sent to the House of Representatives. HB 1521 has been voted out of House Committee.

Missouri's Affordable Housing Agency Earns AA+ Rating

The Missouri Housing Development Commission's strong administrative and management capabilities and its long and successful track record of providing affordable housing in Missouri has earned the agency an AA+ issue credit from Standard & Poor's in January. The report credits MHDC's high credit quality and low-risk asset base as one of the keys to the rating. It also specifically mentions the commission's strong and stable financial performance, high debt rating and minimal general obligation debt exposure. MHDC is only one of three housing finance agencies to achieve an 'AA+' rating, joining Virginia and Minnesota. West Virginia's housing finance agency has an 'AAA'. Read More...

North Carolina Loan Program Designed to Lure Biotech Companies

The N.C. Biotechnology Center has developed a loan program to help bridge the gap in financing often seen by struggling biotech entrepreneurs. The new Strategic Growth Award loan program will match up to $250,000 in loan money that biotech companies secure from angel networks or venture capitalists. It is hoped that the program will send a signal to biotech companies that North Carolina is serious about the biotech industry. Read more...

Nebraska Offers "Marketplace for Entrepreneurs"

Nebraska's Center for Rural Affairs, along with several partners, will host an event called "Marketplace for Entrepreneurs," which is based on the belief that small towns must look within for economic development and to expand their local economies. Patterned after a similar North Dakota initiative, the program will help connect participants to public and private resources that can aid in their business plans. Read more...
